

The White Mix in Murtal

Refreshing snowshoe hikes, family-friendly skiing, relaxing thermal spa visits, and cross-country skiing with stunning views – in Murtal, you'll experience a "white mix" of action and relaxation.

The White Mix

Snowshoeing in the Murtal is a real delight for both beginners and passionate hikers. Special beginner zones allow for easy testing and a smooth introduction to the sport. Long, well-marked routes reveal the winter charm of this beautiful sports region and challenge even experienced snowshoe enthusiasts.

The Murtal offers a carefully selected mix of winter sports. In the family-oriented ski areas, even the youngest discover their enthusiasm for skiing and snowboarding. Here, gentle winter tourism reigns supreme. Long queues at the lift? Not here. Endless waiting in the ski hut? You won't find that either. Family togetherness and fun for all ages take center stage. The ski areas are small but exquisite, and even World Cup teams regularly choose them for training.

As an alternative, you can enjoy the slopes in a more relaxed way by trying uphill sledding, then feel the rush of adrenaline on the way down.

Or how about cross-country skiing? The "white mix" in the heart of Styria offers certified trails with long stretches through the mountain landscape of Hohentauern. Smaller trails – such as those in Seckau or Obdach – offer pure enjoyment of nature, and even night owls can get their workout in. The sports center in Zeltweg features a floodlit trail that guarantees snow reliability.

What would the perfect winter be without impressive peaks, their white summits proudly gleaming well into spring? Ski touring in Murtal is an unforgettable experience for sports enthusiasts.

Shining Brightly in Advent

Murtal shines especially bright and festive during Advent. Hot mulled cider, the scent of gingerbread, and impressive handicrafts delight visitors at the Christmas markets and Advent exhibitions – such as the famous "Farracher Advent" at Schloss Farrach in Zeltweg or the "Alpenadvent" in Seckau.

Discover many other small, peaceful Advent markets and exhibitions, and experience the magic of Christmas as it used to be.

Even during the quieter season, adrenaline pulses through Murtal – when fearsome Perchten figures parade through the streets, thrilling onlookers while keeping ancient customs and regional culture alive.

Bad Weather? No Problem!

As a change from outdoor adventures, Murtal offers numerous family destinations that fill even the darkest rainy days with fun and excitement. Here, you'll find Playworld, Austria's largest indoor family park, where young and old alike can jump on trampolines, play laser tag, or climb and slide to their hearts' content.

For relaxation and cozy warmth, visit the Aqualux Thermal Spa in Fohnsdorf – a haven of wellbeing and comfort. A trip to the 500-year-old City Tower in Judenburg will transport you to distant galaxies at the planetarium. And with facilities such as climbing gyms and other sports centers, there are plenty of ways to stay active and feel good.

Racing Action in Winter

Even in the cold winter months, the Red Bull Ring keeps its doors open – offering car exhibitions, guided tours, and winter activities on the track grounds. There's no shortage of thrilling racing action here, even off-season.

At major sporting events like the Ice Cross World Championship, Luge World Championship, and various ski races, visitors can feel the adrenaline – and at the same time, unwind while ice skating or winter hiking on the frozen mountain lakes.
