Discoveries

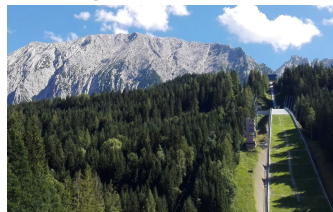

Lake Altaussee See

The Altaussee Lake, also known as the "dark blue inkwell," impresses with its crystal-clear, deep blue water. A approximately seven-kilometer long gravel panoramic path is ideal for walks; those who want to take a shortcut or reach the lakeside meadow comfortably can use the solar ship.

Ski Jump Kulm

The local mountain of the Hinterberg Valley, the Grimming (2,351 meters high), is in front of the Kulm, on which the largest natural ski jump in the world is located. The Kulm ski jump was built in 1950 and was jumped on, among others, by Hubert Neuper Sr. Since 1953, international World Cup events have been held regularly.
